"I do the heaviest advertising in duil times.
"Then it is when people look most keenly for bargains and are anxious to know what things oost, and where they can save money. I advertise particular things, give prices, and take as much pains with my announcement as I do with my stock. DEGENERATE DEMOCRACY. CONTRAST BETWEEN
WAS AND WHAT IS.

How President Pierce Upheld the Nation's Flag, While President Cleveland Hauled It Down.

In discussing its foreign policy friends of the Administration are sometimes pleased to ascribe all adverse criticism of hat policy to political aims and prejulices. They conceive it to be a part of he play to restore the Republican party to power, and they therefore denounce uch criticism as un-American and want ng in dignity and patriotism. This is the principal note heard at this time, when he acute stage of the Cuban matter, the and the approaching revival of the Ha waiian matter all lend interest to the

ALL FOR POLITICS.

It is, upon the whole, regarded as a very strange note for the President's sup-porters to be sounding. They seem igno-rant of the fact that it is upon that very ground that Cleveland has been con-demned. The belief is, indeed, that it was politics, and but very little else, that controlled him in the one gigantic blun der which has cast a shadow over his whole course in foreign affairs. What would his course have been if Benjamin Harrison and John W. Foster had passed the Hawaiian complication along to him without action? There is a sort of friend-ship to him in the feeling that his course would have been very different from what it was. But those men acted promptly, and left the American Flag where it had been raised. Mr. Cleveland had it hauled down, and nine men out of ten hold that he was influenced in that action largely, if not solely, because of a desire to undo the work of his Republi

It is_noted to Mr. Cleveland's disadvantage that such was not the old way in such matters. Earlier occurrences show that earlier American diplomacy was conducted upon a different plan. The rule then was to separate local politics from foreign affairs, and for one party as another to stand up, even at some disadvantage abroad, to whatever had been done officially in the name of the whole

A very striking instance of this is quoted from the record of the Administration of Franklin Pierce, when the spirit of a constant of the American Fig. 2 and to the center, carried the day. tention which in its larger phase had been raised by President Taylor was maintained with emphasis and success by General Pierce, thus insuring a continuity of American purpose and policy. President Taylor was a Whig. President Pierce was a Democrat. But both had been soldiers, and when it came to the Flag and its full significance, no difference what-ever could be traced between the atti-

The Austrian Consul held that Koszta was still a subject of that Kingdom; that he had violated his promise in returning from the United States, made, it was claimed, at the time of his expulsion from Austria, and that Austria's jurisdiction over him was complete. Koszta not only insisted on his right to American protection, but pointed out that he was not, while in Smyrna, on Austrian soil, and that, moreover, he bad not come from the United States on any political or revolutionary errand.

A NAVAL OFFICER'S DUTY.

The American sloop of-war St. Louis came into the roads at Smyrna while the case was up. Captain Ingraham, a South Carolinian of courage and address, was in command, and the American Consul in command, and the American Consul invited him into the management of foverte's case Cantain Ingraham not Koszta's case. Four o'clock came, with no response, when Captain Ingraham, true to his word, drew up to the Austrian with his guns shotted and his decks cleared for action, and Koszta was unironed and sent ashore. The St. Louis was not at all formidable in her self. She probably would not have lived an hour before the guns of the other fellow. But the quiet but unmistakable air of business about the transaction, the American Flag at the masthead and the grit of the American sailor, who was

HIS ACTION SUSTAINED.

There was, of course, a great outcry by Austria. The same Mr. Hulsemann, who had appeared for Austria in the Dudley Mann affair, appeared for her also in this affair, and, characterizing Captain Ingra-ham's action as tantamount to a declaration of war and an outrage, demanded cest manifested by President Taylor and indorsed by President Fillmore in the struggle of the Hungarians for freedom. The case now in point was an animated variation on that patriotic theme.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Now, all of this was in the old time when men both affoat and ashore stood up for the country and worked together for its glory and advancement. What would have been Captain Ingraham's fate had the conditions prevailing today have prevailed then?

Consider the case of Admiral Walker. and the snub he received after his visit to Honolulu; the case of Admiral Meade, who went on the retired list prematurely because of feeling that the present was an un-American Administration; the case of Admiral Kirkland, who has been or dered home for congratulating a personal friend upon his election as President of a Republic! THE farmers who have been selling potatoes at 15 cents a bushel, wool at 10 cents a pound and wheat at 50 cents a bushel had most to do with winning the recent triumph. A Sufferer Cured

"Every season, from the time I was two years old, I suffered dreadfully from eryspielas, which kept growing worse until my hands were almost useless. The bones oftened so that they would bend, and several of my, fingers are now crooked from this cause. On my hand I carry large sears, which, but for Saraparilla, would be sores, provided I was alive and able to carry anything. Eight bottles of Ayer's Saraparilla cured me, so that I have had no return of the disease for more than twenty years. The first bottle seemed to reach the spot and a persistent use of it has perfected the cure."—O. C. Davis, Wautoma, Wis.

AYER'S
